STEP promotions

Congratulations to the three Wolf Pack members selected for promotion by stripes for excellent performers. Tech. Sgt. Neal Barton, 8th Maintenance Squadron, promoted to master sergeant; Staff Sergeants Carlos Soto, 8th Maintenance Operations Squadron; and Matthew Kredell, 8th Civil Engineer Squadron were promoted to technical sergeant.

MLK service

The Wolf Pack Chapel's Martin Luther King remembrance service is Sunday at 3 p.m.

2005 taxes

Active duty people can access and print their W-2 tax statements at myPay by Jan. 21.

Legal hours

The legal office's new service hours for standard assistance are Mondays and Wednesdays from 9 to 11 a.m.; Tuesdays from 2 to 4 p.m. Wills are Thursdays from 9 to 11 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. Notary services, powers of attorney and drop off of form 1840 Rs are Mondays to Fridays 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Everything but notary services and powers of attorney require an appointment.

Housing pay

Everyone should ensure the basic allowance for housing they receive (when applicable) is for the correct location. Receiving pay for an incorrect location could result in adverse administrative actions.

Team 5/6

The Kunsan Team 5/6 leadership group is looking for more members. Those in the grades of E-5, E-6 and those selected for E-5 are eligible. For more information call Staff Sgt. Don Slayton at 782-6453.

Annual awards ceremony

The 8th Fighter Wing annual awards ceremony is Feb. 3 at 7 p.m. in the Loring Club.

Col. Brian “Wolf” Bishop, 8th Fighter Wing commander, addresses the wing’s E-1 through E-4s Monday at the base theater during his Wolf’s call. The Wolf set the stage for the first half of 2006. He emphasized the importance of April’s unit compliance inspection preparations and the installation excellence award team visit. He also talked about basic allowance for housing fraud, new dormitory construction and the “Wolf Pack Water Cooler”.

Kunsan’s Wolf set the course for the next six months, outlining his vision for preparing the base for April’s unit compliance inspection, gearing up for the 2006 Air Force Installation Excellence Award and addressing possible housing allowance fraud.

During a commander’s call aimed toward junior enlisted service-members Monday, Col. Brian “Wolf” Bishop, 8th Fighter Wing commander, made it clear the Wolf Pack will do well in the upcoming UCI because members want to do well.

“We’re going to be on top of the UCI before you know,” he said. “Spring time goes by very quickly. If your documentation and programs aren’t in order, then you are way behind. This is our report card. I’m asking everyone to dig into your programs and make sure they are good to go, and we will pass this UCI with flying colors.”

The Wolf also addressed Kunsan’s officers Jan. 6, and spoke with NCOs and senior NCOs.

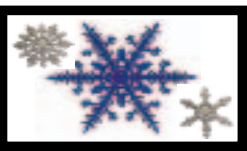

Col. Bishop began the briefing by introducing a new service to Wolf

Pack members.

Called the “Wolf Pack Water Cooler,” the link located on the base’s intranet site will allow Wolf Pack members to post remarks electronically about questions or concerns they have on base. When completed, the site can be accessed from an on-base government computer at https://sps.hickam.af.mil/sites/WP_Water_Cooler/default.aspx.

Col. Bishop said the new site can help solve problems on base quicker by giving everyone instant access to subject matter experts.

How force shaping affects lieutenant's morale

By 1st Lt. Kristen Duncan
Eglin Air Force Base public affairs

Balance the officer and enlisted corps: That is the current need of the Air Force. As an officer and a second generation Airman, I've been told from day one, the "needs of the Air Force" come first.

What happens when those needs mean the loss of my job — and not just my job, but a career of integrity, service and excellence? I vowed to protect the Constitution, to continue what my father and the greatest generation did in World War II. I am truly a patriot. I am an Airman.

With force shaping, Air Force leadership is undertaking the very difficult task of reducing its forces.

In a briefing here Nov. 14, Brig. Gen. Kathleen Close, director, installations and mission support, Air Force Materiel Command, said the leadership knows they could be losing a future commander, or a future general, but the Air Force can no longer support the imbalance of officers to enlisted troops.

To support the mission, the service has to reduce its 2002 and 2003 lieutenants through volunteer or forced separations.

That equals more than 4,000 young, promising lieutenants. One thing is certain: The caliber of lieutenants is unparalleled.

The question is "what does this do to our morale?" Working on various projects, I have to wonder, will any of this mean anything if I'm force-shaped?

Will I still be able to lead my troops? Is my morale going to take a nose dive? What if I work harder than I've ever worked to impress the heck out of every commander I've ever met? How do I keep focused on my job and my mission?

The answer is really quite simple. We should all work harder, not to impress for fear of losing our jobs, but because we are all officers who strive for excellence.

We should continue to accomplish our jobs with the same unfailing performance and the same can-do attitude we've always had.

We should continue to work hard for our shops, our troops, our families and ourselves. In one of the hardest hit career fields, I've examined all my options and have come up with a few ideas: navigator training, Palace Chase and even switching services.

Thankfully, the Air Force is giving us options. I've come to realize, though, that serving my country means serving its needs.

The needs of the Air Force must always come first. I hope to make a career of the Blue; but even if my active-duty career is cut short, it is for the mission of the Air Force and the United States military that I will serve and honorably discharge.

It could be my last act on active-duty service, but I am, and will always be, an Airman.

Promote understanding; keep his dream alive

By Capt. Jenise Carroll
8th Mission Support Squadron

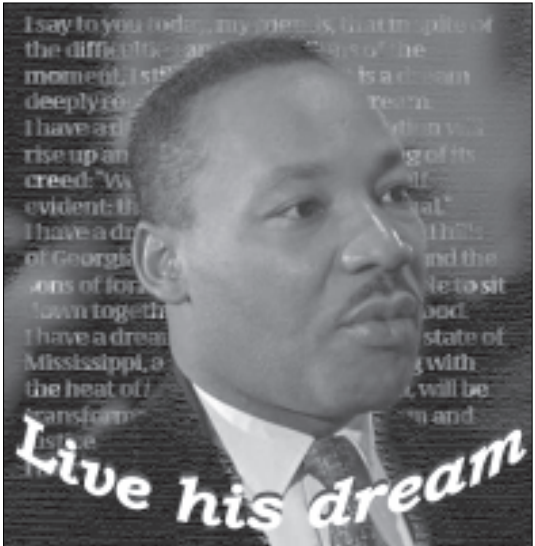

It's during this time of year that we pause and remember the great American, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and his acceptance to a call for freedom and equality with the aim to unite all Americans.

Dr. King once said, "I look forward to the day when we will judge each other not by the color of our skin but by the content of our character." His point of departure simply was a call for human beings to see beyond the surface and peer deep into the character of oneself and then others.

As members of the world's greatest Air Force, the truth in Dr. King's quote reveals itself in the vast numbers of our diverse people. The model in which we operate reveals a system that judges one's character by integrity first, service before self and excellence in everything we do.

Dr. King reveals through his words, "the content of our character," three important points that can aid in our response to the call of duty and life — commitment, faith and sacrifice.

First, Dr. King reveals an uncompromising commitment.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.
Jan. 15, 1929 — April 4, 1968

His commitment was to the struggle for peace, jobs and equality, and his recognition that it would take mass action — and a broad, all-inclusive coalition — to win that struggle.

Second, Dr. King reveals a set of guiding principles or as he would call it "faith to hew out of the mountain of despair a stone of hope."

"A faith to transform the jangling discords of our nation into a beautiful symphony of people." A faith to work together, to pray together, to struggle together, to go to war together, to stand up for freedom together, knowing we will be free one day.

Third, Dr. King reveals the ultimate in sacrifice. He showed by his example the consequences of standing up for fairness is unpredictable.

He showed perseverance through bombings, dog attacks, fire hoses and unwarranted time in jail.

He could bring people's dreams to reality, but he did not have the opportunity to see those dreams come true.

Dr. King's life tells us about the importance of "the content of our character" and the value of freedom in our world.

In honor of his life and legacy, the Wolf Pack Chapel holds a Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. remembrance service at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The guest speaker for this event is Lt. Col. Jeffery Hunt, 8th Security Forces Squadron commander.

A social follows the remembrance service at the Sonlight Inn.

“Any questions you have, you can post them there,” he said. “This gives us the ability to get correct information to you more rapidly, instead of waiting for an answer from senior leadership. If this kicks off, we can dramatically increase the amount of information coming down to you.”

The Wolf went on to address the upcoming installation excellence award. The award aims to reward bases with $1 million for their innovative ways of making use of existing facilities to accommodate quality of life for Airmen.

“This is a big deal,” he emphasized. “If we win, rather, when we win this award, $1 million will be coming to Kunsan.”

Col. Bishop explained that Kunsan is different from other Air Force installations because of its remote status.

He added the inspection team will get to see Kunsan in action.

“We want to show the (IEA) team what Kunsan is all about so we are going to leave the base in wartime mode for them,” he said.

“What I need from each of you is to take a look around your buildings, your dorms and your work centers. I need your help to make sure this base is cleaned up and ready to go. This is how we as the Wolf Pack take the facilities we have and perform our mission with excellence.”

After addressing several other issues facing the Wolf Pack, Airmen were given the chance to ask the Wolf questions face-to-face, including the base’s plan for new dormitories.

“We are building three, brand-new Air Force dormitories,” he said. “Airmen, including junior enlisted Airmen, will receive their own room, their own bathroom and their own closet.

The rooms will share a common area that will house a stereo, TV, kitchenette and a washer and dryer for only those combined four rooms.”

The new dormitories being constructed will make use of the Air Force’s newest design, entitled Dorms-4-Airmen, which combines four rooms to one central living quarter.

Soon after the announcement of the new living conditions, expected to come to Kunsan by 2008, the crowd of more than 300 erupted into a thunderous applause.

The Wolf added the base suffers from a 750-room deficit. Construction on the new dormitory, located adjacent to the O’Malley Dining Facility, is currently underway.

Two additional dorms are slated for completion between 2008 and 2009.

The Wolf also answered questions about the end of Patriot Express service to Korea, downsizing of military positions on the Korean peninsula and possible openings of military facilities in Eastern Europe.

At the end of the Wolf Call, Col. Bishop stressed the importance of making sure Airmen involved their supervisors in their careers.

“There is an increased emphasis in the Air Force in keeping your supervisor involved in what’s going on with your career,” he said.

“This is a good thing because it keeps your supervisor involved in what you’re doing and how you are progressing in your career. Our supervisors are there to help you become a better person. That is where the strength of our nation comes, from by making people better.”

FTAC VISIT

IRAQ

Forces catch terrorists

Jan. 10, 2006 – U.S. and Iraqi forces killed and detained suspected terrorists and uncovered various weapons caches Sunday and Monday. Iraqi soldiers from 8th Iraqi Army Division, supported by Multinational Division Central South soldiers, killed two terrorists and detained four others in a small village in southern Diwaniyah province. Forces also discovered bomb materials near Logistics Support Area Anaconda, southeast of Balad.

Iraqi Army took charge

Jan. 10, 2006 – The Iraqi Army assumed responsibility of Forward Operating Base Bernstein in the northern Sallah-Dihn Province Jan. 5, as part of the transfer of security. The “Cobra” 3rd Battalion, 2nd Brigade, 4th Iraqi Army Division took control of the base and responsibility for the security from the “Balls of the Eagle” 2nd Battalion, 320th Field Artillery Regiment, 101st Airborne Division.

Three elements key to change

Jan. 10, 2006 – U.S. efforts to help Iraqis set up an enduring democratic government will key on three areas this year, President Bush said. “History has shown that free nations are peaceful nations,” Bush said in remarks to members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. “And by helping Iraqis build a lasting democracy, we spread the hope of liberty across a troubled region.” The United States will focus on political, security and economic elements.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

AMERICAN LEAGUE COVERAGE Cops bust AMXS in second half blow out

With help from power shooter Delano Gray’s 21-point breakaway, the gun-toting Defenders blew away the 8th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron Cobras 56-34 Jan. 5.

The Defenders started out sluggish, giving the Cobras several foul-line shots to keep them nudged above on the scoreboard.

Forward Wallace Kennerson helped the Defenders establish a presence with scoring shots at will and pulling down offensive and defensive rebounds, according to Coach Fidel Vergara.

“At this moment, the Cobras point guards kept penetrating our offense,” Coach Vergara said. “We allowed AMXS to stay on top because of our defense.”

Coach Vergara reeled in his team during the half. After cutting the lead from 12 to five points in the beginning of the second half, it looked as though Coach Vergara’s pep talk worked.

“Gray helped cut that lead by driving to the lane, making the baskets and forcing fouls,” he said.

The Defenders took the lead soon after, leaving the Cobras in their rearview mirrors.

The Defenders came out on top, winning by 21 points, 56-34.

As of Tuesday, the Defenders were 5-2 for the season.

NATIONAL LEAGUE COVERAGE MDG breaks CS winning streak with 53-50 win

In arguably one of the most exciting games of Kunsan’s intramural basketball season, the 8th Medical Group “Med Dawgs” broke the seven-game winning streak of the 8th Communications Squadron in over time Tuesday night.

With a 53-50 win, Coach Luis “Pretty Lou” Ortiz said both teams played an excellent defense during overtime, but the game was decided by just one shot.

“The decisive basket of the game was on a drive with less then 10 seconds to go,” he said. “The team was able to double-team Comm, we were able to find a wide-open Johnson who took the shot.”

Coach Ortiz was referring to none other than power forward Daniel “D. Tickles” Johnson.

Coach Ortiz admitted that Comm was relentless on the board during the night’s “see-saw” game.

“Comm continued to hit their shots on the board, but the Med Dawgs combated them by running the whole game,” he said.

The game went point-for-point as the second half ended. The Med Dawgs took the game in overtime 53-50.

OTHER SPORTS NEWS Men’s Falcons takes down San Diego State 65-62

AT THE MOVIES

“THE CHRONICLES OF NARNIA”

Rating: PG for battle sequences and frightening moments
Staring: Tilda Swinton and Georgie Henley
Synopsis: The book tells the story of Peter, Susan, Edmund and Lucy, who are separated from their parents in London during the German air raids of World War II. They are sent to the country for safety and find a magic wardrobe that transports them to the mystical world of Narnia, a once peaceful land of talking beasts, dwarfs and giants. However, Narnia has been frozen by the evil White Witch, and the kids must help the lion Aslan break her spell.
Show times: 7 p.m. today and 6 p.m. Sunday

“JARHEAD”

Rating: R for language, violent images and sexual content
Staring: Sake Gyllenhaal and Jamie Foxx
Synopsis: “Jarhead” (the self-imposed moniker of the Marines) follows Anthony Swoff, a third-generation enlistee, from a sobering stint in boot camp to active duty, sporting a sniper’s rifle and a hundred-pound ruck on his back through Middle East deserts with no cover from intolerable heat or from Iraqi soldiers, always potentially just over the next horizon. Swoff and his fellow Marines sustain themselves with sardonic humanity and wicked comedy on blazing desert fields in a country they don’t understand against an enemy they can’t see for a cause they don’t fully fathom.
Show times: 7:30 p.m. today and 7 p.m. Saturday

“DOOM”

Rating: R for strong violence, gore and language
Staring: The Rock and Karl Urban
Synopsis: Something has gone wrong at a remote scientific research station on Mars. All research has ceased. Communication has failed. A legion of nightmarish creatures of unknown origin lurks behind every wall and stalks the countless rooms and tunnels of the facility, killing what few people remain. Sealing off the portal to Earth, Sarge, Reaper and their team must use every weapon at their disposal to carry out their orders: nothing gets out alive.
Show time: 7:30 p.m. Saturday

“THE FOG”

Rating: PG-13 for violence, disturbing images, brief sexuality
Staring: Tom Welling and Maggie Grace
Synopsis: A thick fog enshrouds a coastal town. The fog is reminiscent of one 100 years earlier that wrecked a ship and drowned the seamen aboard. Sure enough, the sailors are back and out to kill whomever they find.
Show times: 8:30 p.m. Sunday
